Last week a woman residing in the vicinity of Wor-cester, was picking blackberries in a field near the house, having with her her only child, a bright-eyed little fellow of less than a year-old.

The babe sat upon the ground, amusing itself with grasping at clamps of yellow weed that grew within reach, and eating bernes brought him from time to time by his mother. The latter, at length, intent upon gathering fruit, passed round a rock which hid her child from view. She was about to return to him.

She glanced wildly around her for something to might be used as a weapon, but nothing appeared, at already the venomous reptile had passed over-the space which divided him and his victim. Anot er moment and all would be lost. What could be done? In her hand she held a broad tin pan, and springing from the rock, quick as thought she covered the snake with it and stood upon it to prevent its escape. The charm was broken—the child swayed to one side and began to sob. At the same time the mother recovered her voice and screamed for aid, retaining her
